It was quiet some time that the earth had developed a heart of stone. The sky searched a lot on the surface but found no fineness on it. The Sky thought to itself that no help could be given to the Earth

Tears circled in the eyes of the sky, the earth manifestation of affect sky generosity.

Tears flowed uncontrollably from the eyes of the sky for the cruelty of the earth The first tear dropped on the earth, followed by the second and the third.

Form the reunion of drops, streams were produced and the streams join each other and the rivers were created.

The rivers united and the sea was formed, created seas supported each other and the product of this unity was the ocean, oceans conquered the whole Earth in an attempt to join.

Until then the sky gallantry named the rain.

Some time passed.

The days passed one after the other.

The rain water subsided a little.

Every thing began from the time in a memorable sunrise. The first rays of sun shone upon a bud, which had raised its head among the vegetation.

In the depth of the ocean with this manner, the life begins on the Earth. Billions of years later, human, being this biped, set foot on the Earth.

He chipped & created lithic tools, fine and colorful opals and chalcedonies .He built a house from stones to be a centre for and from the kindness the trees wood, constructed window to open this a window. Always to clearer & blue sky and with metal, constructed door to open it to a vision to the kindness and beauty shelter.

He achieved help from soil to grow the plants, water to provide and keep the fish, from the air to fly the bird.

For a short time that the first event happened. Set the human to think more a bout the recognition of the earth.

In a charming and cheering morning, every thing seemed natural and fresh, the mount around the village roared and some minutes later the blue color of sky changed to gray, suddenly the fiery lavas descended from the mount and killed thousands of peoples.

Not a long time had passed that nature scarified other people.

Yeah, in a terrifying earth quake, the earth shook some seconds and in a jiffy, everything was leveled to the ground maybe that time the man believed this to be divine torture and they tried to avoid it.

But geologists, researches show that the earthquake is the result of earth plates replacement, and volcano is born of it is internal action and reaction now days the human science is so extensive that with special tools , we can measure the time of volcanoes and so can vacate the residential places.

And with shudders tools, they register the shudders and with this field, worthy services have done for mankind.

Although man intended to possess this terrestrial globe, he has traveled to the depth of the oceans and has seen all of the creatures under the microscope.

He has used the creatures for nourishing and curing, stones and minerals and even the pearl of oyster for beauty and now in 21 century, the humans are living on an environment that they have extracted all of their around tools from the earth.

I will close my eyes and make my mind a bird to fly and travel to the centuries ago, when the oceans and Seas were full of living creatures. Some of these creatures dived to the depth and were deposited there and after some time, they were buried by depository dregs.

Then bacteria began to decompose those small and tiny creatures and by pressure, temperature, panning time and other factors, altogether provided a suitable condition for the formation of the oil or black gold.

I look at the sky and see the beautiful golden ball and envy its shine.

Yeah the continuation of human life is not possible without the existing of sun....

Most creatures – materials and devices that people are using, are in direct relation with the sun.

But is this fiery furnace always the source of life?

Does mankind think to them why the thing that causes more than enough heat does not fall to the earth?

Does man know that if the ozone layer does not exist, nothing and nobody is safe from the dangerous rays of sun and the extensive heat will annihilate every thing and this beautiful sun will change to an annihilator and fiery ghoul?

A roaring sound broke my thoughts and some time later, the first drop of rain sat on my cheek and then smoothly slid from my cheek and fell on the ground and went clown in it.

I asked myself where this drop is traveling.

I referred to my mind and remembered the day that the teacher defined the story of tired drops.

He said that , the sun shines on the sea, river and even the small pond of grand mother's house and it can heat the water and the drops started to move and then one by one, will ascend and soar to the sky.

When they drops reach to the peak point, they will join and unit together and will create the clouds.

By the blowing of wind the clouds will clash together and the small drops of rain will fall down to the ground and some of them will go down to the earth they will pass through the stones and when they find a suitable bed they will relax on it.

These beds are named, under ground waters and one day these valuable waters will return to the ground surface by people or naturally the sun will shine on them again and these drops are always circuiting in a cycle under the name of the water cycle and these underground waters are important for human.

Now what happened for people? Why they are misusing the fossil fuels that for each of them millions of years are needed to form.

Why they are making a dark and cold future for themselves?

Why they have endangered the continuity of ozone layer by polluting the environment and using harmful pollutants?

Do they know that what are the consequences of polluting contaminating and using the under ground waters more than enough?

One day the ground was full of soaring trees and the jungles had changed the earth to the emerald but the irregular cutting of trees and countless using of people from them destroyed the jungles and the result of this human irresponsibility was nothing but desert soil erosion and the air pollution.

The people even have encountered the natural ice, with the crisis.

These days the media is so wide that we can say every living things on the earth knows what happened on earth but does anybody think when this Tearlessly (drama) begins and what burns the trees on the earth.

Let's come back to the last centuries, when man left the cave and found that he needed houses and a strong roof in order to live better, little by little he tried to communicate and have social life. Thereby the first societies began to form. Small societies that contained small families and are called villages.

Some farmers lived in the village and prepared food and some others kept animals and prepared meat and clothes- some others did some things else there was reasonable and balanced relationship between production and usage.

Nature and people spent their time without any disturbance.

There were living things every where the young married together and then they had lots of children so much occupying on the earth connected villages together and made bigger villages.

After some time, villagers decided to communicate and made bigger societies that were called town.

Living in the town as burgess changed their life style. knowledge was made consequently and improved day by day.

People made new tools and machines were made by new inventions which could do everything better than those people did in past.

Tranquil people were happy to use these inventions but the bad results appeared.

Now it's the time that people hesitate a moment and think deeply, does kind earth deserves such cruelty?

Today communities should come together and inform each other maybe this mankind appreciate the value of God's affluences more and protect them better.
