During the past close century

During the past close century, especially after the second world war, human beings' advancement of the means tapping natural resources, of ability is hitherto unknown. With the exploiting of resources, the natural resources have been exhausted, which is a recurrent fact that we have to face. It is said that the world will consume 40% more natural resource in the twenty years than it does today. Can we just sit watching? Can't we let the hiatus from resource hinder human beings from marching toward the future? As us earthmen, we should not only view the past and the present, but also consider the future for our world!
