

The Gift Of Live (Songtext)

When I take a look around me, at the world we all know.
I often start to wonder, has the wind always blown?
Will the sun forever shine? Has the sky always been blue?
But I slowly start to realize, that it won't always be true.

How can it be so easy, to take the earth for granted?
The land and the sea, just can't always be rented.
If we continue what we're doing, we will have to say goodbye, to the greatest gift we've ever had. The gift of life...

When clouds of smoke enclose the earth, good things are hard to see.
When birds are gone and cars roam free, how can it comfort me?
Where can we turn, when tsunamis wash our hopes away?
When children need to run, then how can they find time to play?

Isn't it time, to think about the future?
To look around what we can do, to restore the force of nature.
If we don't start acting now, it may someday be too late.
But if we change our way of life, we can still turn our fate.

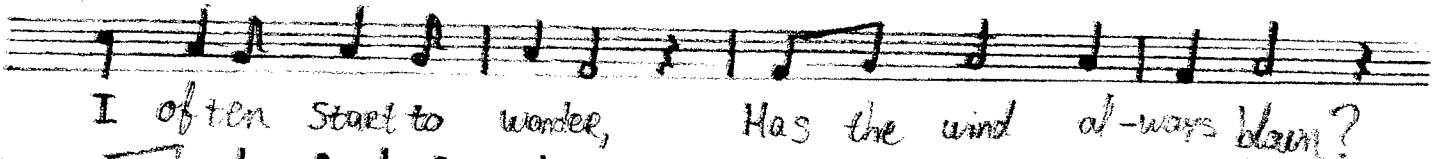

All we need to do, is divert the winds of change.
Make them blow away the fears, we have never dared to face.
If we want to give a future, to the ones whom we gave birth,
we should start taking care of our space ship called Earth.

The gift of life

when I take a look a-round me. at the world we all know

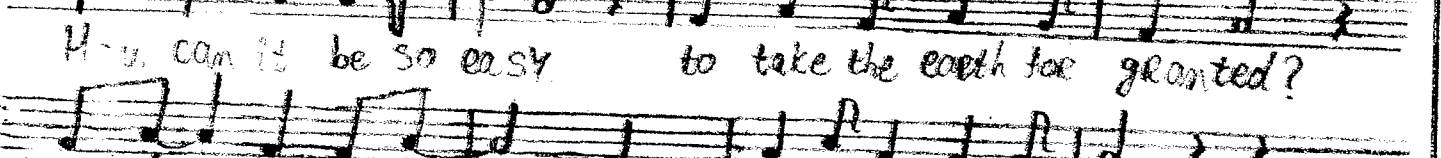

I often start to wonder, Has the wind al-ways blown?

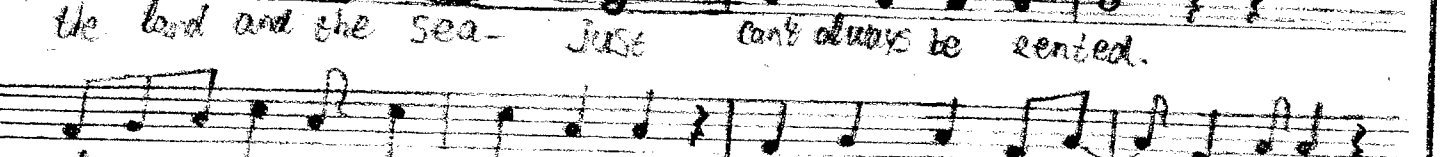

will the sun For ever shine? Has the sky always been blue?

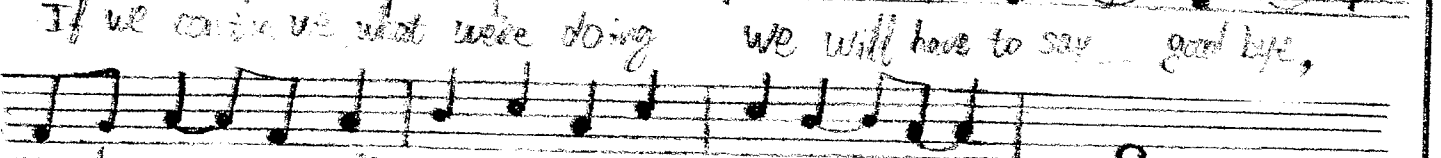

But I slowly start to ee a lize that it won't al ways be here.

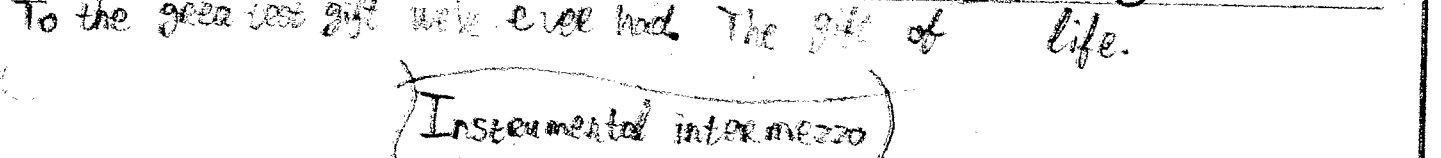

How can it be so easy to take the earth for granted?

the land and the sea- just can't always be rented.

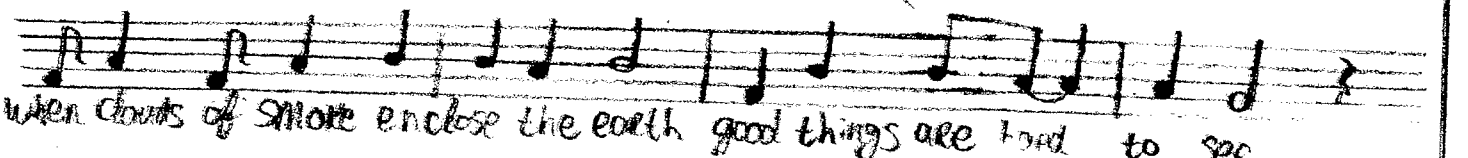

If we con-ceive what were doing we will have to say good bye,

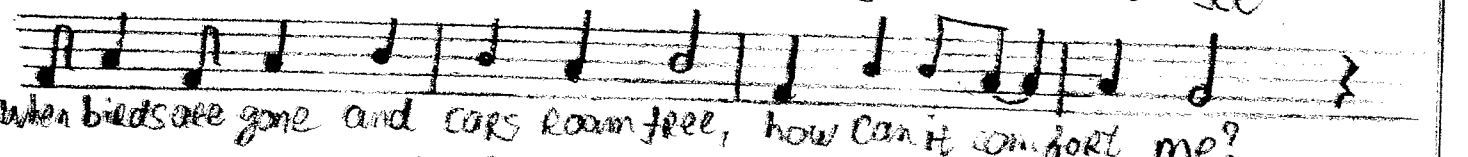

To the gree-est gift we've ever had The gift of life.

Instrumental intermezzo

when clouds of smoke enclose the earth good things are hard to see when birds are gone and cars roam free, how can it comfort me?

where can we turn when tsu nams wash our hopes away?

When child ren need to run Then how can they find time to play?

isn't it time to think about the future?

to look around what we can do to Re Store the force of nature.

If we don't start acting now, it may someday be too late.

But if we change our way of life we can still turn our fate

all we need to do is divert the winds of change

Make them blow a way the fears we have never dared to face.

If we want to give a future to the ones whom we gave birth,

we should start taking care of our space ship called earth.
